Dr. J. A. Gray Addresses The Physical Society on The Photo-Electric Effect

The Physical Society held its regular fortnightly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Dr. J. A. Gray being the speaker on this occasion. He selected for the subject of his address, "The Photo-Electric Effect," and performed a few simple experiments to illustrate some of the facts in connection with the above subject.

At previous meetings the members have heard Sir Ernest Rutherford discuss the extremely short electro-magnetic waves called X-rays and gamma rays, and Prof. King dealt with the long waves employed in wireless telegraphy. The present address had to do with those invisible radiations whose wave-lengths are somewhat smaller than those of blue and violet light, and which are therefore called ultra-violet light. Photo-electricity has to do with the structure of atoms, the nature of radiation, and its action on an atom in the same manner as have the radio-active radiations. The atom is supposed to consist of a nucleus with a positive charge surrounded by rings of electrons. If an electron is disturbed, it will vibrate with a frequency depending on its position in the atomic system. The disturbance may be sufficient to remove the electron entirely and minimum energy necessary to do this for an electron in any ring can be expressed in terms of simple quantities connected with the state of the atom.

The first observation of the photo-electric effect was made by Hertz in 1887. He found that a spark would pass more easily between the electrodes of an induction coil if ultra-violet light was allowed to fall on the cathode or negative electrode. Hertz found that if ultra-violet light is allowed to fall on a negatively-charged body it will lose its charge and if well charged becomes positively charged up to a definite potential. At this point the lecturer illustrated the first part of the above statement. He first charged a gold-leaf electroscope negatively and allowed ultra-violet light from a spark to fall on the terminal plate. The leaves were observed to collapse slowly. On charging the electroscope, however, no change was observed.

Eliot and Geitel made experiments on metals and found that electrons are emitted at all speeds up to a maxi-

Rolling Mills Interest the Railroaders

GRAD. ON THE STAFF

Wonderful Machines Simplify
Seeing Great Labour Very Much

Yesterday afternoon, the Railway Club held a most interesting trip to the Montreal Rolling Mills. The members met in the Union at 2 o'clock and then proceeded to the Steel Works.

On behalf of the company, E. C. Kirkpatrick, a McGill graduate of '06, now on the staff of the steel mill, conducted the party over the works.

The first department visited was that where wire nails were being cut out of wire at an almost incredible rate. Two rows of machines were in use, the wire being fed in at one end of the machine and the nails dropping out into a pan underneath and going from there to the tumbling bins where they are cleaned from any trace of oil.

The rolling mills proper were then visited. Here the white hot bars were taken out of the furnaces by perspiring laborers, and run through the rolls (all they were the proper size). From here the party proceeded to the department where bolts were being made, only stopping on the way to gaze with wonder on the mammoth shears which cut through a four by six inch steel bar with the greatest ease.

In making bolts pieces of rod of the right size are heated in a small furnace and run into a machine, which presses the rod into the form of a square head. The rods are then run one to heat the rods and the other to feed them into the heading machine.

The various departments where rivets are made were then passed through and the seemingly endless rows of intricate machines were inspected and commented on by Mr. Kirkpatrick, who explained their functions.

One department which attracted quite a considerable display of interest, was the floor on which horse shoe nails were being manufactured. Here the number of machines it requires to perfect a single horse shoe nail seemed ridiculously large. Some of the students were greatly interested in watching the girl operators in this department who had charge of some of the machines.

Then the washing room was visited. Here the coils of wire are dipped in a bath of sulphuric acid and finally dipped in a bath of lime to neutralize the acid.

The shipping rooms were then visited and this completed one of the most interesting trips the Railway Club has ever undertaken.

Denial Given by Mr. Mingie to the Rumour

That Lord's Day Alliance Will Take Action Against Military Authorities

In order to ascertain verification or contradiction of a rumour which has been going the rounds of the college, hinting that the Lord's Day Alliance might take action to have Sunday's parade of the Regiment cancelled, the Daily last night communicated with Rev. C. W. Mingie, secretary of the Alliance for the Province of Quebec. Rev. Mr. Mingie was most emphatic in his declaration that the organization intended to take no such action. Rev. Dr. W. M. Rochester, Dominion Secretary, explained yesterday in town yesterday, and made a number of enquiries in regard to the parade. The Alliance, he said, had no jurisdiction over any action which might be taken by the military authorities. Dr. Rochester's statement was simply that he might make an investigation into the matter.

Impressive Ordination of Soldier

Rev. J. W. Graves, Wesleyan
Student, Admitted to the Ministry

UNIQUE SERVICE
AT OLD ST. JAMES'

Rev. Principal Smyth Delivered
Most Able Ordination
Address

Last evening a very impressive ordination service, and one unique in the history of Methodism in Canada, took place in the St. James Methodist Church, when J. W. Graves, was admitted into full connection in the Methodist ministry. The candidate, who is going to the front, with the Medical Corps, was attired in khaki uniform.

Dr. W. Spurling, president of the Montreal Conference, was chairman of the evening, being assisted by Revs. Prof. Richardson, Dr. Villard, Dr. Hart, Pounder, Williams, R. E. Smith, Cassidy, A. T. Jones and Dr. Smyth.

The service opened with the Hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by prayer by Rev. C. A. Williams. Revs. A. Jones, secretary of the Montreal Conference, and Robert E. Smith, chairman of the Montreal North District, read the scriptures. While the collection was being taken, the students sang "Blest be the tie that binds," followed by the entire congregation singing "Stand up, stand up for Jesus."

Rev. Principal Smyth delivered the ordination address, his text being based on "I glorify my Ministry," Romans XI, 13.

"This is a unique service in the history of Canadian Methodism," he said. "Several young men here have heard the call of their country in the hour of its trial and have promptly responded to that call. One especially comes forward, having finished his college course, and being tried and tested, to seek ordination at the hands of the president of the Conference and his conferees. He acknowledges a double allegiance for he wears the uniform of his country and of his church, and he also acknowledges his allegiance to Almighty God. He comes to ratify his oaths of allegiance to whom we have committed our Empire at this time."

A RED LETTER DAY.

"There are red letters in the history of every ministry, and one is who determines to live for Jesus Christ. Mr. Graves, having successfully passed through one of our colleges, comes forward to seek the final ratification of his church and its seal upon him, which he believes to have come in the first place from the Divine. But he now jays aside the armor of the Christian Church for other young men to carry on.

An ordination service is always impressive, but it is doubly so in this case. As we gaze upon these uniforms, our minds are carried to the battlefields of Europe, where brave men are giving their lives for us on the battlefields. These young men are not called to a peaceful service, but where death falls, where there are works of heroism to be accomplished, called to a service that will test every fibre of their moral fibre and the faith of which they are about to place in words and spent whole nights in prayer to prepare men for the difficulties and dangers that laid in their paths.

"There are two reasons for the text," he said, "the emergence of one who ministry was cast in the heroic mould, and the conception for everyone who wishes his ministry to rise above the commonplace. It is something heroic as it calls for the best of man's energies, of which the human frame is capable. Paul has been pictured as wearing a Roman toga; but he was, to my mind, just as anyone else as he was proclaiming the gospel with flashing eyes, saying 'Fight the good fight of faith' at the end he could say 'I have fought a good fight.' Conducted

From far and near have come donations to the McGill General Hospital. Over $6,000 has been received to date in cash contributions alone, while associated with these in many centres are working for the hospital and are supplying it with such necessities as sheets and bandages. From one friend has come the gift of a five passenger touring car. Mrs. W. R. Miller, of Montreal and Mrs. Dobell, of Quebec, have each offered a motor ambulance. These cars are being made in England by one of the best makers and on the specifications of the War Office.

Mrs. Herbert Molson and Mrs. G. Cantlie have contributed pneumonia jackets and other comforts. A Montreal chemist, Mr. J. E. Tremble, has presented to each of the officers going with the unit a clinical thermometer in a service case. A complete set of gas anaesthetic apparatus will be purchased with $1,000 contributed anonymously, through Capt. W. B. Howell, from a lady in Plymouth, N.H. These are only a few of the many gifts received.

The list of those who have helped financially is indeed a large one and includes many well-known names. It is as follows:

Soldiers' Welfare League of Montreal, $500; Miss McLennan, $200; Miss B. McLennan, $200; Mr. B. McLennan, $200; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Creak, $100; Mrs. W. D. Sutherland, $100; Sir Thos. and Lady Roddick, $100; Mrs. E. B. Blackie, in memory of her son Douglas, $100; Dr. Lewis L. Bedford, $100 ($50 of which is for surgical supplies); Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cook, $100; The Misses Fleet, $150; Anonymous (through Mr. D. Law), $100; Anonymous (through Dr. H. S. B.), $50; Dr. A. W. Thornton, $25; Mr. Kaanuth Young, $25; Mrs. C. B. Keenan, $20; Miss E. A. Nash, $10; Anonymous (through Dr. H. S. B.), $100; Capt. and Mrs. Archibald Reid, $25; Anonymous (through Dr. H. S. B.), $1,000; Dr. P. Cooke, Quebec, $25; Mrs. A. Drummond, Colorado Sp., U.S.A., $200; Mr. W. G. Cheney, Colorado, Cal., $1,000.

These gifts have all come voluntarily, and the spirit in which they have been sent serves well to illustrate the feelings of McGill graduates and the public generally towards the share that McGill is doing to aid our country.

Address to be Given to Science Undergrad Soc.

E. P. Mathewson to Speak on
"Copper Metallurgy" on Monday Night

On Monday evening, February 22nd, the second meeting of the Science Undergraduate Society will be held in the Chemistry Theatre. Owing to the many engagements, fewer meetings than usual are being held this year. On Monday evening, an address will be delivered by E. P. Mathewson, B.Sc., of Anaconda, Montana, McGill graduate. The address will be on "Recent tendencies in copper metallurgy."

While this subject is of special interest to mining and metallurgical students, and all departments will find much that is interesting and instructive. This is the last meeting of the year and all men should make an effort to be present.

had somewhat forgotten the social element in the Christian ministry until we are reminded of it by Roman Catholic priests laying down their lives in Belgium, of the sons of Protestant ministers throughout the Empire and by the sight of these young men before us who represent one-seventh of our Wesleyan College going to the war.

"As Paul stood before kings and governors for the sake of the Master, so these young men can glorify their ministry. It is in the height of danger that your service will seem most like the Master's if you seek to glorify that ministry. Paul considered his ministry as something to be proud of. It was something magnificent, something dignifying, glorifying and yet full of responsibility. Once the ministry was the last refuge of incompetence as being the easiest thing to succeed in, to be presented with a living when no other living was possible. Yet it is the most difficult of any calling to which a man can give himself; to minister to minds diseased, to persuade to virtue, to save men and women from abandonment to something high and noble. Paul glorified his ministry by living for it and ultimately dying for it. John Wesley said 'You have nothing to do but to save souls.' Wesley was skilled in literature; yet he had a consuming passion to save souls, other reformers also lived and died for the gospel. Paul practised what he preached. What our ministry is depends upon what we are. Practise what you preach, for men will read what you are in your face. The minister must be more than the man on the street. He must feel spiritually what must be nurtured on the study of God's word. You men who are going to the front will have a great opportunity to study human nature. Everything will be thrown to the winds that tells of conventionalities. An opportunity will be given you to test the gospel you preach. You can

The McGill General Hospital

The McGill General Hospital, which is to leave early in April, has recently been the recipient of many very munificent gifts. To date, over $6,000 in cash besides some useful presents have been voluntarily donated. Every day this list grows larger.

It will be remembered that the Canadian Government carries the main expense of the equipment of the Hospital. The additional donations received have enabled the authorities to buy extra apparatus and equipment, such that when the hospital takes its position on the lines of communication, it will be the best equipped unit of the kind at the front.

McGill will have the command of the latest medical facilities that are to be had. It would be hard to overestimate the boon that this hospital will be to wounded soldiers as they return from the battlefield. McGill's hospital will stand in the first ranks and wounded soldiers who are fortunate enough to come within its scope will welcome the extra facilities which the benefactors of the hospital have made possible.

The Assault-at-Arms

Last night's Assault-at-Arms proved decisively that there is some splendid material at the University in the way of boxers, wrestlers and fencers. McGill has been well represented for the last two or three years in the Intercollegiate Meeting, which is due to take place toward the end of the month, and this season should prove no exception to the rule.

While hockey and other winter sports seem to have been declining in favour, the B. W. and F. Club have been gaining ground systematically. The winning of the championship last year will be but the stepping stone for a number of successes. Good coaches put the efforts of the good material at their disposal in the right line.

Interest there is in plenty and this added to the good coaches and material leave us in little doubt as to the outcome of the Meet in Toronto. If we don't win we must know the reason why.

McGill Twenty-Four Months Ago

From the McGill Daily of February 18, 1913.

The fifth annual dance of the Strathcona Hall residents which was held last night in the Union proved to be an unusual success. There were some eighty-five couples present and Prof. Brown's orchestra played the latest tunes.

The regular meeting of the McGill Canadian Club will be held in the Union this afternoon, when Dr. Finlay will lecture on "Educational Reform in the Province of Quebec."

To-night will see a great struggle stage which the Toronto University will compete in Intercollegiate debating honors. The subject of the debate is "That the time has come when a policy of conscription should be adopted within the Empire."

Mr. W. E. G. Murray, the man who is responsible for the beginning of the McGill Daily, and also a brilliant scholar and athlete, has decided to try for the Rhodes Scholarship.

Numerals were awarded to 31 Yale freshmen for track, cross-country and football successes. The Hill school prepared eleven of seven men while Exeter was second with seven. Swimming proved the most popular sport at New Haven last fall, as fifty chose this exercise as a substitute for the required gymnasium work.

Cornell, Brown, and Union will replace Dartmouth, Vermont and Springfield on the Williams College football schedule next fall. Princeton again appears on the schedule. The dates are as follows: Sept. 25, Troy Poly; Oct. 2, Union; Oct. 9, at Cornell; Oct. 16, at Brown; Oct. 23, Trinity; Oct. 29, at Princeton; Nov. 5, at Wesleyan; Nov. 12, Amherst.

An interesting and practical suggestion—the credit for which must go to Drs. Adams and Rhea—is that the hospital take with it from Canada a number of horses prepared here before leaving so that the serum necessary for inoculations at the front may be procured first-hand. If this suggestion is acted upon—and it is altogether probable that it will—it will be a system entirely original and unique.

There seems to be some doubt as to the exact location of the hospital at the front. It is not to be a base hospital—a term which has been often, incorrectly, applied to it—but a General Hospital, to be established on the lines of communication, about forty miles from the firing line. It will be a stationary unit—except in the case of an exceptional advance or retreat—and is to be distinguished from the mobile field hospital of the Army Medical Corps, near the firing line, and also from the base hospital, really a sort of convalescent home, generally in England.

It is expected that further announcements of importance in connection with the hospital will be made shortly.

STUDENTS AND THE REGIMENT.

My dear McGill,

The war dislocates your life at nearly every joint, just as it dislocates the lives of the individuals that make up you, for in your corporate being you are an image of the State and the State is similarly affected. Its dislocation is felt by you as a whole and by your several members, disarticulation of life is the experience of those who, in this crisis, find themselves in the fortunate position of resigning their freewill and becoming atoms within the fighting machine. A certain detachment of view follows which is all the excuse I offer for what I feel constrained to say, addressing myself to your four component parts.

The Students' Body, the Professors, the Management, the Alumni.

These component parts have drifted into an impossible position through attempting the spiritual gymnastics of serving two masters, a practice the dire results of which were pointed out, once for all, two thousand years ago. Your present course is impossible because it leads to the waste of things well begun.

You, the Student Body, are attempting to absorb cultural or professional, training in obedience to the wishes of your parents and guardians and with a sincere desire to get value for the fees paid on your behalf, a thing you can only do successfully if your minds and hearts are undistracted. But you are also trying to train as soldiers, in glorious ignorance of the fact that a soldier to any use must become an athletic fighting animal. This a man can only become by directing his whole daily supply of energy to the task for many months. Some of you have conceived the highly reputable ambition to become officers, and you think you can do it, at break-neck speed, devoting your few leisure hours to the task.

You, the Professors, know perfectly well that your teaching power is impaired by the passion of interest which you are taking in the war. You know also that those you teach have for the time being given their hearts to things other than the studies you direct. In a word you are sprinkling the backs of these young men with rosewater from an atomizer spray.

You suffer also the inertia of your mass, and so are content to go on with the farce till Convocation day.

As to the Management, so happily adapted to rule this University under the blue sky in strict obedience to its own orders, with nice appreciation of those matters in which the student body, the professors or the alumni have the right of initiative, you are for the time being an anxious onlooker, but you are surely ready to sever the Gordian knot that now strangles to impotency, the moment the initiative comes from the right quarter.

And lastly you, the spiritual fruit of McGill, the Alumni, are suffering the agonies of an inhibition, for you know the part you would have the University play, the part which is ready to help her play well credit—but the initiative in this matter is not with you, for excepting those of you who pay fees for your sons, you have little in the way of a contractual relation with the institution whose fame is as your own, and which you see at the melancholy business of stepping one pace to the front with the right foot and one pace to the rear with the left.

This deplorable position is largely due to the spirit of compromise, which helps us over many difficulties in time of peace, but is always fatal to action in time of war. The Medical Faculty some time ago made the discovery that stretcher-bearers was as good as ward-walking, as a part of the course for the degree. It may be so. I think it is not so. I know it is not in strict harmony with the contract involved in the calendar, the faculty of Arts, the examination and the granting of a Degree.

The Faculty of Arts, in a truly liberal spirit, surprisedly discovered that military training was good for the average man's character. The Battalion plades were thus ranked as a "humanity." It is a corollary of logic this training (which amounts to very little, by the way, and is in no way controlled by the Faculty of Arts) is accepted in lieu of a contract item. The Faculty of Arts and Science took a far more dignified view of its responsibilities. I think when it resolutely set itself against the theory that squad drill was the equivalent of any sort of technical training, provided for in its mighty syllabus of studies. The strength of this position was somewhat weakened by an allowance of 10 per cent. of marks to men doing certain drills. A further weakening now manifests itself in a decision to consider each case "on its merits" and allow degrees to those enlisting on the opinion of their teachers that if they had been taught certain things they could have passed.

Thus we see the humiliating spectacle of men, who know quite well that they are fit and acceptable and should serve their country, being tempted to make degrading bargains with their faculties and their consciences.

Faculties putting themselves in the very false position of making it difficult for these men to do their duty. We see the mildly perverted attitude of mind, which the examination system necessarily imposes on all who study to pass, converted into a sort of poker bluff to scrape through examinations at a minimum proficiency, with the good cause of military training as an excuse, and we see the good cause trifled with and made abortive.

But the causes of all this are only worth considering in so far as a knowledge of them may help to a solution of the difficulty.

What can be done? The graduates cannot in the nature of things come in and dictate a solution, though there is little doubt that they would advise and be prepared to support.

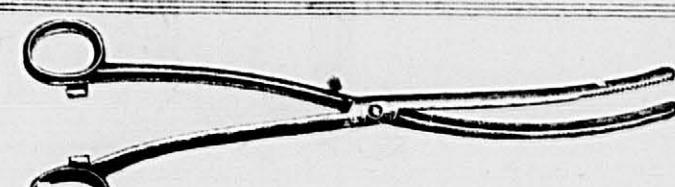

The Professors must, again, from the nature of things, go on doing what it is there for doing as long as there is a student on the benches.

The matter of the Student Body can decide the matter one way or the other, for, from the nature of things, this is their affair. The present position is farcical, ineffectual, wasteful. Of course if you are content with the present waste of your time and opportunity to become soldiers, or creditable graduates, you should do nothing. My advice to you, however, is either to abandon at once your Battalion and stop playing training, or abandon at once your lectures, sports and stop pretending to study. But you must do this in a body.

For what are the alternatives? The Battalion now drills well enough for the field of battle. But the Battalion is totally unfit to be of use for war. It could not march (it has not yet felt what full kit means). It could not shoot, it could not manoeuvre, and most emphatically, and this is a matter which I speak with technical knowledge and assurance, it could not fight. I think also a very large part of it, in its present form, would get ill in camp.

Well a few spare evenings and an occasional Saturday, when there is no hockey, won't make the Battalion any

WILLIE ECKSTEIN, Pianist

There was a straw in your correspondence letter which showed most distinctly the way in which the wind was blowing with him. He said that he "had been asked" to join the McGill Regiment. This statement is doubtless an accurate one; but the context of his letter shows most clearly that there was in his mind a suggestion that in acquiescing with the asking he had conferred a favor upon someone, probably the asker, or upon the country which our regiment serves. That there should be even a hint of a straw to show that such a wind as this is blowing in the mind of anyone at McGill is more than unfortunate.

Men, capable of realizing the situation, serve in the regiment not as a favor to anyone, but solely in order that they put themselves in a position to keep for themselves and for their children, those things above all price, which our forefathers, by their blood and trials through centuries of effort have made and perpetuated in the forms of government enjoyed to-day by us.

This, the plain truth of the matter, has been said and said again, and written and written again, until no man at McGill can fail to have seen of it more homely, was something about enough to make men arm that they may protect themselves; certain it is, that if we are conquered, the kicks will be forthcoming to us all.

"ANXIOUS."

Sergeant F-r-b-s: "Comp-nary" ten-shun! Two marches back—step! Eh—I mean—two back steps—march, D—it! I always get mixed up with that order.

The vivid word picture of war given by a British Tommy lying wounded in one of the hospitals in France is worthy to rank high among the masterpieces of literature. Asked for his impression of the fighting, he said: "Well, first you 'ears an' all of a noise—an' then the nurse says, 'Try and drink some of this 'ere.'"

"STRAWS SHOW"

To the Editor, McGill Daily:—
I read a communication of a correspondent in the Daily a few days ago and at once two proverbs came to my mind. One of them was "Straws show the way the wind blows"; the other more homely, was something about words to wise man and kicks to some one else.

Yours truly,

McGill Play Vics To-night In City League
The Games This Evening Will Have Bearing on Schedule Standing

Three important games are to be staged at the Arena to-night in the City League Series. The league officials decided that it would be advisable to play two series of games this week so as to finish up the season in time to let the winners challenge for the Allan Cup which is emblematic of the Amateur Championship of Canada, which is now held by the Melrose Hockey Club. So far the M.A.A.A. team are leading in the City League race, but will have to play right up to the end of the season to keep ahead of the other clubs.

To-night the Vics and McGill will come together in the opening fixture of the evening. The Vics are taking no chances, dropping any further down the column will be out to win. Sargent, who left with the 21st Artillery yesterday, will be missed from the line-up of the Vics.

The McGill team will be represented by their usual line-up, it is more than likely all men will be used so as to rest the seniors up more or less for the game with Varsity on Saturday.

The Nationals and Laval will play the second game and these two French teams should be an interesting and interesting argument. Laval are still to be at full strength and should make the Nationals go a fast clip to keep their place in the running.

The third game between M.A.A.A. and Shamrock should be an interesting one and speculation is rife as to the outcome. The Shamrocks have been improving of late and might upset all calculations to-night when they meet the M.A.A.A. six.

"Hockey"

The following players are requested to be at the Arena at 7.15 p.m. sharp for the McGill-Victoria match: Mann, Kendall, Morris, Parsons, Rainboth, Hall, Marson, Rooney, Andrews, Kelsch, Work, Ross and Blair.

Fifth Annual Winter Carnival
Held in Dartmouth—R. C. Paulsen Makes an Exhibition Somersault Leap

The fifth annual Dartmouth Winter Carnival was held Saturday. The times made in the various races were comparatively slow—better speed being made in the practice on Thursday. The main feature of the intercollegiate contest was the ski-jumping. R. C. Paulsen, of Dartmouth, won the ski-jump, Friday's winner in the ski cross-country race, made an exhibition leap in which he turned a complete somersault in the air, finishing this feat in perfect form.

The summary:

Snow-shoe cross-country race—W. D. Kipp, Dartmouth, first; C. B. Thompson, Dartmouth, second; and M. G. Sherburne, Dartmouth, third.

Ski cross-country race—R. C. Paulsen, New Hampshire State, first; E. E. Burke, McGill, second; J. P. Bowler, Dartmouth, third.

Snow-shoe obstacle race—B. N. Davis, Dartmouth, first; W. D. Kipp, Dartmouth, second; R. H. Anderson, Dartmouth, third.

Dartmouth-McGill relay race—Won by Dartmouth.

Dartmouth-McGill ski-jumping contest—Won by Dartmouth, 779.8 points to 711.

Miss Perry Spoke Before The Y.W.C.A.

Yesterday afternoon, Miss Perry, of the Montreal Y.W.C.A., addressed the college Y.W.C.A. on "The Practical Side of the Y.W.C.A." This is just the side which appeals most to college girls, and those who attended were greatly interested by Miss Perry's very helpful and practical talk.

Miss Perry reminded us of the necessity of a working outfit, to be in good shape, by a fine public spiritedness, by an interest in lonely ones etc. For it is by this practical Christianity rather than by judicious driving, cajoling and dragging, that successful work may be done.

The speaker reminded us of the greater advantages which we enjoyed, in comparison with many other girls. We get light on many dark spots, and a good working outfit on life. Our responsibilities are accordingly greater, and particularly to those girls who must get many of these things, only through us.

In closing, Miss Perry laid much stress on the summer camps for girls, the Eight Weeks Clubs and the Summer Bible Schools, all of which give girls a splendid opportunity for social work.

It is ideas and standards like these that make the Y.W.C.A. a real, live thing for the college girl, and the society feels much indebted to Miss Perry for the very real help given.

INTERFACULTY ASSAULT-AT-ARMS LAST NIGHT. WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The Winners of Several Bouts Have Been Challenged by Other Men; Finals Will, Therefore, Be Held on Monday at 5 p.m.

The chances of the Red and White in the Annual Intercollegiate Assault-at-Arms, are exceedingly good. The winners of the Interfaculty meet which was held last night in the Union will take the trip to Toronto to represent McGill in boxing, wrestling and fencing. McGill will send a strong team onto the mat and Toronto and Queen's will have to travel some to wrest the honors from them.

In wrestling, especially, there are some first class men. Parsons, in the 155lb. class, clearly showed that he has got the science and speed and it will take a good man to force his shoulders to the mat. In the 125lb. class there were two men of almost equal calibre, Banfield and Myerson. The former, however, was the aggressor and proved too much for his huskier opponent. It is a safe bet that Banfield will go the limit in Toronto. Last year he cleaned up everything there was in the Intercollegiate and also in the McGill American trip. At this time many comments were made on the excellent showing of Banfield, and in the year's time he has not only advanced a class but has improved a great deal in all points of the game.

Matthews, who came Johnson in the 145lb. class and thus will meet Kelly on Monday night for the title. Matthews is a good aggressive wrestler, having in his repertoire a good many holds and counters.

The 158lb. wrestling was the best of the evening, Kelly and Kemp putting up a snappy exhibition all the time. Kelly secured a fall in the first few seconds, but after that Kemp went on the aggressive.

Owing to an injury received by Brown, the heavyweight wrestling was awarded to Rounthwaite.

The best bout of the evening was the 158lb. boxing, when Almond and Spohn mixed things up in great style. Spohn swung wild at times, giving Almond a fine chance to get in left jabs to the jaw and face, which soon told on Spohn. By the end of the bout, Almond had clearly showed his superiority. It was a pretty sight to see Spohn's face. He also contributed some of his color to Almond's face. In Almond McGill has got a good man who will take a lot of going to beat.

In the 155lb. wrestling, Jeffrey clearly had the advantage over McCully. Jeff secured the first two falls in short order. Jeff will now go up against Ramsay on Monday night.

The Lemay-Donnelly heavyweight exhibition boxing bout was called off owing to a sudden illness to Donnelly. This was the cause of some disappointment as those present wanted to get a chance to see these two boxers go to it.

Falls proved to be the better man in the 155lb. boxing. He was a lot steadier than Crombie, the latter being inclined to waste his energy in running around the ring. Falls used his right to the jaw to good advantage, this blow getting him the referee's decision. Falls earned his victory and will put up a good fight for the honors in the Intercollegiate.

"Norm" Forbes takes the 125lb. boxing by default. No one cared to take him on. Norm has twice been Intercollegiate champion, and will very likely carry off the honors again this year.

Banfield won the 151lb. boxing, Dobson taking the count. The latter lacked science, but he was game to the end and took a lot of punishment. Banfield was not in very good condition.

Fencing has once more come back into prominence at McGill and some good men will take the trip. In the semi-finals Terroux had very little trouble in out-pointing Lowe. In the second bout, Wickenden and Dale-Harris put up a clever exhibition of the game, the former being awarded the decision. The final provided lots of excitement. Wickenden finally winning out from Terroux with five hits.

On the whole, the evening was a success and great credit is due to the management of the Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Club for the entertainment put on. Although the crowd was not as large as had been expected, yet a goodly number of enthusiastic students were present to urge on the different combatants. The free smokes once more proved popular.

Added to the evening was the Students' Orchestra, which rendered several selections in fine style.

Mr. Hamilton, of the M.A.A.A. handled the wrestling in fine style, his decisions being taken without comment, while Billy Armstrong took the boxing.

The following are the remaining officials: Box judges, Dr. Harvey, Percy Roberts, L. Montgomery; Time-keeper, S. Lamb; Announcer, A. P. Smith; Fencing, Prof. Traquair.

SEMI-FINAL FOR CAPPER TROPHY THIS AFTERNOON

Both Teams Feel Confident That They Will Meet Medicine in the Final

It is a coincidence that this year the three teams in the Interfaculty Assault-at-Arms series should all belong to that august and illustrious year, 1917.

This afternoon, at the ungaily hour of one o'clock, when the most devoted of hockey players prefer only a legacy to lunch, the 6-man hockey team of Arts '17, by its victory, has put all the players they have will run up against the heavyweights of Science '17, who beat out the Seniors in the finals for the play-off.

Medicine '17 who were the winners in their faculty, drew the bye and will only have to play a consolation game (or loss) the championship.

Science '17 have a good team to take the ice to-day. Rochester in goal, has played a few times at the Intermediate and Junior practices, and has showed up well, his inability to clear quickly being perhaps his only weak point. Wilson and Parsons (F.), who will probably be on the defence, are a trusty pair of different calibre, the former having speed and not being quite as heavy as his colleague, who is slow and headless. The team as a whole are far heavier than their opponents and this will be sure to be a big factor in the result. The forward line is fast and heavy and have two or three pretty good subs.

Arts '17 are handicapped with a scarcity of players, because with Ritchie off, though that is slightly very slightly, compensated for by the loss of McCulloch to Science '17, the Arts team have to work through the hour without a change, but if the stupendous and more than stupendous playing of former games stays with them, the match ought to be, at the worst, a hard one for Arts '17.

The team is very light, averaging about 120 pounds. This is, in spite of the fact that N. B. Allan has formerly turned out to the practices. Keir in goal usually makes a good showing and hopes to do so to-morrow.

The defence has been changed a bit, Steve Allan having been moved up from Major's company to that of Aird and Cassidy, while MacDermot has been deposited to the vacant place. The captain thus hopes to improve the two departments of the team, involved in the change.

The team from Arts seems to have good condition on its side, judging from the fact that they played a 1-1-2 hour game last Saturday against the freshmen, with practically not let up for the sextette.

On the whole, prospects look good for a close, fast, well-fought game; though it is hard to see how absent lunchers will have a very compelling effect on the play.

Historians To Hold Meeting This Evening

The Historical Club will meet again this evening to resume its interrupted programme. This year is peculiarly hard on clubs and societies and this is especially so of those which exist in the more theoretical sphere. The Historical Club has an honour which it is proud to make and keep up their attendance at the meetings. It might be said of the club this year that it is supplying a niche in the historical and historical background and the experience and history of former wars, of a like nature to the present one. Up to this date, the papers and discussions have been on the great atrocities of former times and makes a peculiarly fine prelude to the subjects of the last two evenings of the programme dealing with Germany in the making, and Germany the mad and expressing herself to that effect.

This evening the papers, three in number, are on the subject of Napoleon and his relations to Europe, culminated in the "Franco-Prussian war of 1870, which to some extent provides an inherent cause of our present conflict. Since 1870, France has been harboring an ill-feeling against Germany, and awaited the day of revenge, and Germany has been keenly on the alert to maintain that which she then gained.

Furthermore, the Historical Club has a history. It is probably the oldest of the minor clubs in McGill and owes its foundation to the interest of Dr. Colby, who still maintains such a keen interest in its welfare.

This evening the club meets at Dr. Colby's house, 560 Pine Ave. west, and a good attendance is requested.

THINGS THEATRICAL

FEATURE PROGRAMME AT THE STRAND.

A stirring four-part melodrama of aristocracy and royalty, entitled "The Revolutionists," will be featured on Thursday and Friday at the Strand. The picture is well staged, well played and well photographed. There is an idealistic ending, one wherein a young king turns his throne over to his people and leaves his kingdom for England, where he marries his days with his wife, a daughter of the people. There are strong scenes sprinkled throughout the story, and it should appeal to the majority of those who seek a hammer which may be used.

Along with the above, Anna Nilsson and Harry Millarde, in "In the Hand of the Jury," in two acts, will also be featured. One of the most exciting scenes in the play is where the girl accused of a crime, is put to the test, she proves her sincerity, and he is defeated in his avowal.

Gym. Prizes Being Chased By a Crowd

Record Number of Men Turning Out for Work on Apparatus, Etc.

Over fifty were turned out to last night's gym. class and Wickstead practice. The special practice was called at 4.30, when work was done on the parallel bars, horse, high back and fence vault.

Judging by last night's turn out it is a pretty good bet that the record number, established last year, will be beaten. There were twenty of the possible candidates out yesterday.

For the Wickstead bronze medal there is to be all kinds of keen competition. Yesterday saw "Sid" Baldwin, of basketball and water polo fame, and "Andy" Andrews, the senior hockey man, out. "Andy" was a strong contender last year and though "Baldy" has not been in any competitions during his stay at McGill, he has had a considerable experience and certainly will give the best of them a good run.

Norm Forbes has decided to enter the final year competition and this division should present a close finish with such other men as Guy, Sc. '15; Minnie, Med. '15; and Dean, Arts '15; Med. '18.

Dan, Sutherland, of track fame, is out after Dr. Harvey's trophy and should give a good account of himself. He will be seriously opposed, however, by the large entry field comprising such stars as Karl Forbes, Ben, Klein, Hastings and Antiff.

The possible Wickstead men who were out yesterday were:

Sutherland, Hastings, Wiebel, Watt, Dawson, Elliott, Gould, Green, Schofield, Antiff, for the first year.

E. M. DesBrisay, Descoe, Andrews, Chisham, Falls, Baldwin, for the second and third year competition, while Minnie, Dean, Guy and Forbes were out getting in some work for the Wickstead silver medal, which is offered for competition among men of the graduating year.

The competitions are to be held on March 8 to 10, so there is plenty of time for candidates to get into shape. Special practices are being held on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 4.30, in addition to the regular gym. periods. There will probably be an additional period on Thursday of next week.

The following is a list of the movements for the competition, and the marks obtainable on each piece of apparatus.

R. V. C. Hockey on Saturday

Some Improvement Shown in Shooting and Passing—Hopes of Winning

Yesterday afternoon, on rather soft ice, a hockey practice was held at the R.V.C. Weather permitting, a game is to be played against Macdonald ladies here on Saturday morning next. Although Macdonald won by one point in last week's overtime game, the R.V.C. team is hoping for better results this week. Special work was put in at the practice on shooting and combination. Here the team is weak and of course these little things

Professor Leacock Gives Reading at St. John, N. B.

Prof. Stephen Leacock, entertained a large audience with some of his humorous readings, in St. John, N.B., Monday evening. Commenting on the entertainment, the St. John Globe says: "His Worship the Mayor presided and introduced Prof. Leacock, who first gave a reading from his novel 'Spook,' a clever satire on the woman of today, and followed it with the three-act play 'Behind the Beyond,' an exceedingly clever take-off on the modern problem play and throwing into bold relief in its conclusion the audience that condemn such plays as 'rotten,' but by their patronage continue to make them financial successes. Concluding, Prof. Leacock made a fervent and eloquent appeal for the Belgians and wound up with what he called a report from the London Times of a debate in the British House of Commons in 1916 on the Home Rule Bill showing the unanimity of feeling and brotherly love brought about by the war which has settled for all time the petty differences formerly dividing British poli-

OPERATION ORDERS TO BE CAREFULLY STUDIED

C.P.R. Has Placed Special Train at Disposal of Battalion—Men to Entrain at Windsor Station At 9.30 a.m.

STE. ANNE MANOEUVRES—OPERATION ORDERS.

Owing to the immense amount of work involved in organizing the battalion and in its elementary training, it has been impossible on many occasions to announce beforehand the nature of the contemplated manoeuvres and the work which would be required of the officers and men; also the variable nature of the winter weather has necessitated the cancelling of several tactical exercises which had been previously arranged.

With regard to the Ste. Anne de Bellevue trip on Sunday, February 21st, it is necessary that every man understand beforehand the nature of the manoeuvres and the work allotted to the general companies, platoons and sections. In the morning “Protection on the March” will be demonstrated. On arrival at Ste. Anne de Bellevue the battalion will at once proceed to the Lake of Two Mountains. The Advanced Guard under Captain McDonald will immediately proceed over the ice in the direction of Cape Anne a L'Orme, being a point on the eastern shore line of the Lake of Two Mountains about five and a half miles distant from Ste. Anne Station. The Advanced Guard will be divided into a Van Guard and a Main Guard. The Main Guard will march one mile ahead of the Main body and the Van Guard half a mile in front of the Main Guard. Ahead of the Main Guard again will be the scouts, spread out in fan shape so as to protect a broad front and give ample warning of the approach or location of the enemy. The fundamental duties of an Advanced Guard are:

Van Guard—Reconnaissance; and Main Guard—Resistance.

On the right flank will be a flank guard which is divided into a flanking party and Main Guard. The flanking party will move on the extreme right along the Senneville Road which skirts the eastern shore of the Lake of Two Mountains. The Main Guard will follow the eastern shore line of the Lake of Two Mountains. It is the duty of a Flanking Party to protect the entire flank of the Main Body and in order that the Main Guard may not itself run into difficulties in the way of ambushes, there are thrown out from it an Advanced and Rear Guard Party covering the immediate front and rear of the Main Guard. In fact a flank guard has a similar function as an Independent Body on the March in the sense that it is itself protected by a small Advanced Guard, Rear Guard and Flank Guard.

The Rear Guard is divided into a Main Guard and Rear Party. The Main Guard will follow a mile in rear of the Main Body and the Rear Party one-quarter of a mile in rear again. In cases where an attack may be expected by a pursuing enemy, the Rear Guard has the same formation as an Advanced Guard, namely reversed.

It is the intention to adopt active service conditions as closely as possible in the Ste. Anne de Bellevue manoeuvres and in order to do this it is supposed that a division of the Red Force is encamped at Montreal. The Commander of the Division receives a report that the Ottawa River, Ontario, has detached one battalion with instructions to proceed down the Ottawa River on or about the 20th of February, across Lake of Two Mountains and take up a position near Fort Senneville. On receiving this information the Officer commanding the Red Detachment decides to send a detached force to Ste. Anne de Bellevue for the purpose of forcing the enemy.

He accordingly communicates with his Transport Officers and arranges for rail movements. He then issues an Operation Order in the form “A” below. This is delivered by messenger and received by the Commander of the Red Detachment Force (McGill Battalion). On receipt of the order the Officer Commanding the Red Detachment Force issues an Operation Order in the form “B” attached. In this operation Order he gives the necessary particulars regarding the information received, his intention, details of the troops to form the Advanced, Flank and Rear Guards, the composition of the Main Body, the nature of the transport and the place where reports are to be sent. These orders are delivered to the Officers Commanding the Advanced, Flank and Rear Guards, who acknowledge same by signing receipts. These latter officers in turn duly consider the matter and issue operation orders to their respective commands in the forms C, D, E, & F. (It is important that every man in the battalion study these Operation Orders and retain copies.)

The Battalion will bivouac at Cap Anne a L'Orme and cook its noon-day meal. It will be endeavored to carry out this manoeuvre without any outside assistance, the Battalion being thrown on its own resources. For the purpose a toboggan transport will accompany the Main Body. It will consist of one toboggan per platoon, on which will be carried cooking utensils, food and ammunition.

The Headquarters staff are endeavoring to obtain suitable maps of the district in order that they may be published for the information of all. In addition, it is recommended that each member of the Battalion read carefully the Sections in Infantry Training dealing with “Protection on the March.”

Afternoon Manoeuvres.

During the noon-day meal it will be supposed that a scout of the Flank Guard has brought information that the enemy, 2 Company Infantry, arrived Friday, February 19th, at 11 p.m., and are strongly entrenched on the high ground at a position in the Senneville small village about three miles north of Ste. Anne de Bellevue on the Ste. Anne-Senneville and St. Genevieve road.

The Officer commanding the Detached Red Force, on receipt of this information, will at once move forward, accompanied by the Company Commanders, to reconnoitre the enemy's position with a view to deciding on the best means of attack. He will find the enemy entrenched in a semi-circular position facing North-East with the left flank resting upon and defended by a 500 foot stone water tower and the golf club house, the latter being strongly fortified.

An attack against the enemy's left flank or centre will appear impossible owing to the strong commanding defences on the left flank, furthermore the approaches are open and unobstructed by numerous wire fences running parallel to the enemy's position.

A combined developing and decisive attack will be decided upon, the former from the northeast against the centre, and the latter from the southeast against the enemy's right flank. This developing attack will be used to attract the enemy's attention to his front, while all the time the appearance of genuine offensive movement, the object being to keep him engaged on his front, pin him to his ground and force him, if possible, to use up his reserves.

As the developing attack progresses and when the commander considers the proper time has arrived he will order the decisive attack, the troops for which will have moved forward from the L'Orme under cover of the woods and Morgan woods to a position in the woods, 1,500 yards to the southeast of the Golf Club House. The decisive attack will be made by deploying from the woods, pressing forward as rapidly as possible, and driving home the assault, on charge. During the decisive attack the developing attack will show increased activities and will co-operate in the final assault on the enemy's position.

The whole manoeuvre may be described in plain language as similar to making a fake drive with the right hand to the opponent's stomach, causing him to cover up and then delivering the real punch with left hand on his right ribs.

On return to the main body the commander will assemble his officers and give verbally the necessary operation orders to attack at once. If there should be such an order for an attack the following day, an operation order in writing would be issued in the following form A.

Members of the Battalion are recommended to read Sections 114 and 124 inclusive, of Infantry Training 1914.

As the above article is published merely for instructional purposes to the members of the McGill Battalion, other newspapers are kindly requested not to copy same.

What Advertising did for the Canadian Apple

(Prepared for the McGill Daily by the Desharats Advertising Agency.)

As an illustration of what advertising will accomplish take the result of the apple campaign, which was started some months ago.

The apple crop this year was unusually good, so good in fact that it looked as if a large part of the crop would have to be left in the orchards to rot.

The Canadian Government decided they would try and market the crop by educating the public to the value of the apple as a food, as being superior to all other fruit.

The result of the campaign was that almost every Canadian was eating apples in some form or other.

What advertising did for the apple, it will do for any other commodity.

Don't you think that the advertisers in the McGill Daily deserve your patronage, when they are helping you to maintain your publication?

War Summary

These Articles Are Specially Written for the McGill Daily and are Published Each Day.

FRANCE

In the north the second aerial raid of the British was the outstanding feature of yesterday. Forty machines of the aerial section of the British Navy assisted by eight French aeroplanes raided the districts of Bruges, Ostend and Zeebrugge. The official report states that good results were obtained. In the Champagne district a number of the enemy's attacks were repulsed. Near Fontaine-aux-Charmes in the Argonne the French gained some slight success. A severe fight took place at Four de Paris but the enemy were repulsed. In the forest of Melancourt some of the German trenches were captured. It is thought that the Germans will soon attempt another drive in the north and the British and Belgian lines there have been heavily reinforced.

RUSSIA

Berlin reports state that the German troops have invested the Russian fortress of Kovno. No confirmation of this has been received, however. In Southwestern Poland the Germans are reported to have evacuated the town of Piotrkow on account of an outbreak of disease there.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

The Russian retirement in Bukovina has stopped. The Russians have been reinforced by reserves and are now making slight headway against the Austrian forces in the neighbourhood of Czeronowicz.

SERBIA

The Albanian raiders on Serbia have been defeated and thrown back across the Serbian frontier and the Serbs have invaded Albania according to reports received from Saloniki. It is also reported that the Austrians have assembled nine army corps on the Serbian frontier.

BRITISH EMPIRE

The first loss through the German blockade occurred yesterday when the
